What will CI ask me about the Client?

Basic demographic information including Native American Heritage and Veteran status

Specifics about finances and what the concerns are: unusual purchases or withdrawals, evidence of fraud, new person accompanying client to do banking, anything out of the ordinary

Specifics about how the client is behaving at the bank or credit union: do they seem distracted or forgetful, pressured by person they are with or the individual speaks for them, fearful, secretive, is their appearance different than normal
Why does Centralized Intake and APS need this information?

CI needs as much demographic information to properly identify the client

CI needs your firsthand observation of the client to determine if the client is a Vulnerable Adult and whether to assign or deny the referral

CI asks Native American Heritage as APS does not have jurisdiction over tribal members on reservation or trust land

CI asks veteran status as there are some extra resources available to assist a veteran if the case is assigned

APS needs as much information as possible about the financial concerns, including records, to fully investigate the allegations and to coordinate with law enforcement if warranted

APS needs the visual observations of those who directly interact with the client to determine client can make informed decisions

APS needs information about positive supports in the client’s life to connect with
