Track your spending!

Write down all expenses to help you determine the actual amount you spend in each category. You don't have to track every penny. Tracking your expenses for one to three months will give you a true idea of your spending habits. Little things add up - you may be surprised!

This tracking sheet fits into your wallet. Write down the amount you spend and check off the applicable category or describe the expense in the "other" column. At the end of the period (week or month), add up your spending and use the totals for your cash flow statement and spending plan.

How to get your credit report at no cost

To order your free report, go to annualcreditreport.com. Review your credit report from the three credit bureaus, getting one every few months. This keeps you up-to-date on the content and allows you to find any inconsistencies within your financial information as you compare the reports. For further information, contact any of the three major credit reporting bureaus:

Your FICO score is available to you for a small fee. You can obtain your FICO score and find additional services and resources to help manage and protect your credit from Equifax.

What to do if you spot errors

Credit reports may contain outdated or incorrect information. Creditors report billions of pieces of information to credit bureaus each year. Under the Fair Credit Reporting Act, credit bureaus and any business that supplies them with data must investigate consumer disputes at no charge, generally within 30 days. Within five business days of completing its investigation, the bureau must send you the results, a revised copy of the credit report, and information about your rights. Corrections must be sent to all major credit bureaus, so you don't have to contact them yourself. If you spot suspicious information, here's what you should do:

- ❑ Write a letter to each credit reporting bureau, giving your full name and mailing address, date of birth, and Social Security number, and explain what information you think is inaccurate.
- ❑ Request a deletion or correction.
- ❑ In your letter, clearly identify each item in your report that you dispute.
- ❑ Sign your letter.
- ❑ Enclose a copy of your report with the items in question circled.

- ❑ Include copies (not originals) of documents that support your position.
- ❑ Send your letter by certified mail, return receipt requested, so you can prove that the credit bureau received the information.
- ❑ Keep a log of your efforts and everyone you talk to. Make your credit report a valuable asset. Pay your bills on time, review your credit report at least once a year, and understand how the credit rating system works. Avoid possible complications associated with having an inaccurate credit report and rectify erroneous information immediately. A solid credit record and an accurate credit report are valuable assets.

Credit Reporting 101

Understanding Your Credit Report

When was the last time you checked your credit report for accuracy? How do you obtain your credit score? What does your credit report mean to those who lend you money and credit? Not only does your credit report affect your financial life, but it can also affect your career, education, and the interest rates that lenders offer you. Your credit report should make you look as financially attractive as possible. By periodically reviewing your credit report, you can see your payment history, understand how your credit is rated, prevent errors from going undetected, and save delay when you need an accurate credit report the most.

Credit reports from the major reporting agencies

Your credit report—also referred to as a credit file, credit history, or credit rating—is a compilation of your payment history on all credit accounts to judge your credit worthiness. The three major credit reporting agencies are Equifax, Experian, and TransUnion. They don't share information, so one report may not be identical to another. Information about your existing and past credit accounts—mortgages, credit cards, student loans—is reported to the bureaus, while judgments, liens, and bankruptcies are found by the bureaus from public records.

Credit bureau affiliates

Besides the three major reporting agencies, there are hundreds of credit bureaus called affiliates that collect financial information for their customers. Mortgage reporters use credit report information to create detailed credit reports for real estate lenders. Resellers purchase, collect, package, and sell information about your financial life to lenders, employers, insurance agencies, and other customers. Their customers use the information to make decisions about whether to offer you loans or other services

Requests to view your report

Whenever you or an authorized creditor requests to see it, your credit report is produced with a listing of your personal information, payment history, outstanding balances, and maximum lines of credit available. Your credit report also reveals any late payments, charge-offs (accounts written off as uncollectible), bankruptcies, and recent inquiries from creditors that have obtained a copy of your report.

Types of credit reports

An investigative report is very detailed and may contain information about your lifestyle. Investigative reports are usually prepared for companies that want a thorough background check, such as one needed for high-dollar insurance policies, a high-level job, or a security clearance.

A standard report contains a complete outline of your financial history. You'll probably only have to deal with a standard report. There are four parts to a standard report:

Personal information—Your name, spouse's name, address, previous addresses for the past 5 to 10 years, date of birth, Social Security number (as well as that of your spouse), addresses of your previous and present employers, and your telephone number.

Tradeline—A list of your credit accounts, the opening date, whether you make timely payments, the balance, joint account information, and any negative information regarding the account.

Public record—Monetary judgments, state and federal tax liens, and bankruptcies.

Inquiries—Everyone who has viewed your credit report recently. One kind of inquiry is generated when you apply for credit, insurance, or a job. Another kind is a promotional inquiry that is created when lenders ask the credit bureau for lists of people who fit a certain category so that they can mail them pre-approved credit offers. A third kind of inquiry is created when lenders want to review their customers' credit reports to increase credit lines before the holidays. Customers who fit the stores' qualifications will be granted more credit.

Credit Report Card: The Three "C's"

The guidelines that creditors use to decide when to grant credit are character, capacity, and collateral

□ Character:

How responsible you are in paying your bills

□ Capacity:

Your ability to repay loans based on money management skills, income, and financial position

□ Collateral:

What assets you have to offer if you don't pay back the loan

FICO score helps a lender gauge the likelihood of a loan being repaid. While your credit report is a reflection of your financial activities, your credit score is an analysis of your credit worthiness based on your credit history and current credit accounts.

Credit scores range from about 350 to 850 points. The higher the score, the more likely you are to get credit. A score of 700 and up is considered excellent, while borrowers with scores below 620 may not get the best interest rates available and may experience complications when requesting credit. Here are three important factors that determine your credit score:

Past payment history. Get a higher score if you consistently pay your bills on time.

Outstanding balances. The higher your credit card balances are in relation to the percentage of your credit limits used, the lower your score.

Financial stability. The length of time you've had the same accounts open, the various types of existing credit, and the number of recent credit applications you have submitted. Also, the length of time at your current job and whether you have a checking or savings account are considered when calculating your score.

COMMON WAYS ID THEFT HAPPENS:

Skilled identity thieves use a variety of methods to steal your personal information, including:

1. Dumpster Diving. They rummage through trash looking for bills or other paper with your personal information on it.
2. Skimming. They steal credit/debit card numbers by using a special storage device when processing your card.
3. Phishing. They pretend to be financial institutions or companies and send spam or pop-up messages to get you to reveal your personal information.
4. Changing Your Address. They divert your billing statements to another location by completing a "change of address" form.
5. "Old-Fashioned" Stealing. They steal wallets and purses; mail, including bank and credit card statements; pre-approved credit offers; and new checks or tax information. They steal personnel records from their employers, or bribe employees who have access.

Identity theft is a serious crime. It occurs when your personal information is stolen and used without your knowledge to commit fraud or other crimes. Identity theft can cost you time and money. It can destroy your credit and ruin your good name.

Deter identity thieves by safeguarding your information.

- Shred financial documents and paperwork with personal information before you discard them.
- Protect your Social Security number. Don't carry your Social Security card in your wallet or write your Social Security number on a check. Give it out only if absolutely necessary or ask to use another identifier.
- Don't give out personal information on the phone, through the mail, or over the Internet unless you know who you are dealing with.
- Never click on links sent in unsolicited emails; instead, type in a web address you know. Use firewalls, anti-spyware, and anti-virus software to protect your home computer; keep them up-to-date. Visit OnGuardOnline.gov for more information.
- Don't use an obvious password like your birth date, your mother's maiden name, or the last four digits of your Social Security number.
- Keep your personal information in a secure place at home, especially if you have roommates, employ outside help, or are having work done in your house.

Detect suspicious activity by routinely monitoring your financial accounts and billing statements.

Be alert to signs that require immediate attention:

- Bills that do not arrive as expected
- Unexpected credit cards or account statements
- Denials of credit for no apparent reason
- Calls or letters about purchases you did not make

Inspect:

- Your credit report. Credit reports contain information about you, including what accounts you have and your bill paying history.
  - The law requires the major nationwide consumer reporting companies—Equifax, Experian, and TransUnion—to give you a free copy of your credit report each year if you ask for it.
  - Visit www.AnnualCreditReport.com or call 1-877-322-8228, a service created by these three companies, to order your free credit reports each year. You also can write: Annual Credit Report Request Service, P.O. Box 105281, Atlanta, GA 30348-5281.
- Your financial statements. Review financial accounts and billing statements regularly, looking for charges you did not make.

Defend against ID theft as soon as you suspect it.

- Place a "Fraud Alert" on your credit reports, and review the reports carefully. The alert tells creditors to follow certain procedures before they open new accounts in your name or make changes to your existing accounts. The three nationwide consumer reporting companies have toll-free numbers for placing an initial 90-day fraud alert; a call to one company is sufficient:
  - Equifax: 1-800-525-6285
  - Experian: 1-888-EXPERIAN (397-3742)
  - TransUnion: 1-800-680-7289

Placing a fraud alert entitles you to free copies of your credit reports. Look for inquiries from companies you haven't contacted, accounts you didn't open, and debts on your accounts that you can't explain.

- Close accounts. Close any accounts that have been tampered with or established fraudulently.
  - Call the security or fraud departments of each company where an account was opened or changed without your okay. Follow up in writing, with copies of supporting documents.
  - Use the ID Theft Affidavit at ftc.gov/idtheft to support your written statement.
  - Ask for verification that the disputed account has been closed and the fraudulent debts discharged.
  - Keep copies of documents and records of your conversations about the theft.
- File a police report. File a report with law enforcement officials to help you with creditors who may want proof of the crime.
- Report the theft to the Federal Trade Commission. Your report helps law enforcement officials across the country in their investigations.

Maximizing Your Company Savings Plan

Make the most of your savings plan.

There's a lot to like in 401(k) and other employer-sponsored savings plans: The ability to choose your own investments from a menu of investment options. A chance to save pre-tax dollars. An easy way to save for retirement. The possibility of "free money" from an employer contribution. The benefits are all there...as long as you make the most of your plan.

take the driver's seat with a 401(k) plan

Start by joining the plan as soon as you're eligible. It's never a perfect time to save—there always are demands on our money. Save a small amount now and save more as soon as you can.

Consistency is the key to success. Saving a small amount from each paycheck can be relatively painless and profitable. Over time, the income earned on your money typically snowballs, ringing the cash register of retirement security.

Cash in on free money

The government limits the amount of money you can contribute to your employer-sponsored savings plan on a before tax basis.<sup>1</sup> You save pre-tax dollars from your "gross" income, so your retirement contributions reduce your taxable income. It may make good financial sense to contribute the maximum and cut your tax bill.

<sup>1</sup> In 2007, the maximum employee pre-tax contribution for most employees by law was $15,500. The limit is adjusted each year for inflation.

If your plan has a matching employer contribution, it's an added bonus. Try to contribute at least the maximum amount your employer will match to get as much "free money" as possible. Typically, employers contribute a percentage of your contribution through their own matching formula. Until you withdraw the money, it's a tax-deferred bonus that boosts your long-term savings.

If you can't contribute the maximum, contribute as much as you possibly can and increase your contributions as your salary increases. An employer match can help increase your retirement savings. Assume you earn $40,000 and you contribute 10 percent into your account each year. If your employer matches your contribution up to, say, 3 percent of your pay, that's $1,200. Wow!

Save the most that you possibly can in a 401(k) or similar employer-sponsored savings plan. The money you save here could provide the foundation for a financially secure retirement.

Buy a ticket to the investment world

When you have a small amount of money to save and invest, it can be difficult to meet minimum requirements for many investment vehicles. A 401(k) or similar plan combines the money of many employees, giving you access to a variety of investment opportunities.

Diversification is one of the most important principles of investing. You can achieve much of that diversification through different mutual fund options in your plan. A "balanced" mutual fund, for example, owns shares in many different stocks and bonds. The 401(k) or similar plan gives you access to professional money managers who choose among thousands of investments.

Don't cash out—roll over

If you change jobs, don't clean out your plan account along with your desk. It's too tempting to spend all or part of your money. Even a small raid on your savings can crack your nest egg and risk your retirement security. Your best alternative may be to roll the money over directly into your next employer's plan or into an individual retirement account (IRA). You may even be able to leave the money in your current employer's plan.
